Described as a 'greenhouse for new ideas', Gróska is a new business growth centre located outside Reykjavik in Iceland. A dynamic and inspiring workplace, the four-storey building provides a creative hub for the local business community.

Award-winning interactive entertainment company CCP Games have moved its new headquarters to the building's third floor. The design team opted for Junckers Oak Variation, an all-natural, solid wood floor with a lively look, to add interest and visual texture to the large, open spaces flooded with natural light.

Oak Variation has a rustic appearance with distinct colour and structural variation between individual staves. The most expressive of Junckers' wood flooring grades is growing in popularity as architects and designers look for visually intricate flooring, a trend fostered by the resurgence of herringbone flooring. All Junckers' solid wood floors have EPDs and are FSC® and PEFC™ certified.
